

Reflection:

- 1) I enjoy this website because it's up-to-date and interactive, offering everything one could possibly need to make knitted or crocheted tops. Along with all of these, yarn of every kind is available for a very reasonable price. Additionally, I bought a lot of items from this website during the winter, such as blankets, and they came in very handy because I could easily find what I needed using the search feature. My interest in yarn-made accessories is the reason I chose this website for my assignment; additionally, the interface of this website caught my attention more than other options that were given to us. I selected this because I'm interested in those topics and want to use the right information to complete my work nicely.
- 2) When a user registers for a new account on this website, they are prompted to provide information such as their email address, password, first and last name, and a captcha. This is a necessary field to ensure that the user is human and not a robot. It seems less colorful, though, when we are directed within the website. Ultimately, it's a marketplace where they sell items such as clothing, yarn, crafts, presents, and books. As a result, these websites may require some color to help users navigate and purchase additional items. Because the business needs to draw in a growing number of users and provide them with the content they want in order to sell such goods. I therefore want to use some of my CSS skills to make it more appealing and engaging for users, which will hopefully lead to an increase in both user base and sales. With the exception of this, I thought the entire process—from signing up to searching for an item to checking out and receiving it—was attractive.
